Cairn in Blessington: Supporting a Thriving Community

Cairn's work in Blessington is focused on supporting a thriving community where people can put down roots and enjoy everyday life. Alongside new homes, this commitment includes delivering important infrastructure and shared spaces that support the town's long-term growth and strengthen the sense of place for everyone who lives there.

A key part of this approach is the delivery of Blessington Town Park by Cairn which, when complete, will provide c. 32 acres of green parkland created for the whole community to enjoy. Rich in local flora and fauna, the park offers space to play, exercise or simply relax in nature, with paths, play areas and sports facilities at its heart. Cairn is also delivering the North Blessington Inner Relief Road, helping to ease local traffic and make journeys through the town safer and smoother.

Beyond homes and infrastructure, Cairn supports local life through the Blessington Community Fund, which helps back community-led projects and initiatives. The fund is designed to enhance local amenities, support wellbeing and strengthen connections, ensuring long-lasting benefits for Blessington and the people who call it home.

Connecting past and present

The name Ballycomyn reflects the original historic name for Blessington — meaning “the town of Comyn” — recorded as far back as 1243 and possibly linked to Gilbert Comyn, nephew of Archbishop John Comyn. The name “Blessington” emerged later, likely as a mistranslation.

Today, Ballycomyn carries that earlier name forward, connecting local history with an exciting new chapter for Blessington.
